Honeymooners jailed for having sex on the beach

— in a real-life 'From Here to Eternity' shocker!

NEWLYWEDS Vicki and Randall Thorntonburg.

By JEFF CUNNINGHAM
Weekly World News

Honeymooners Vicki and Randall Thorntonburg spent their wedding night in a dingy prison cell — after they got swept away by passion on a public beach and cops spotted them making whoopee in broad daylight.

The two lovebirds were arrested and charged with public indecency and hustled off to a tiny jail in the British Virgin Islands.

According to press accounts, they face up to a year in jail if convicted.

"It was a real-life version of the famous love scene in that movie From Here to Eternity," said a police inspector.

"They were wet and covered in sand and they were totally into what they were doing.

"It was broad daylight, but even that might have been all right if they had chosen a secluded place.

"Unfortunately, they were right out there on a public beach with at least two dozen beachgoers nearby. I can't imagine what got into them."

The 24-year-old groom and his 18-year-old bride have hired an attorney and are pleading not guilty. They say when they started to cuddle on the beach there was no one around and they had no idea that a crowd had gathered, and that a police photographer was secretly taking their picture.

To make matters even stranger, the couple blamed their strict upbringing and high morals for their embarrassing behavior.

"My clients were both virgins before their marriage and they say their sexual restraint was so great for so many years that when they at last were free to make love they couldn't control themselves," explained the newlyweds' lawyer.

"They told me they remember lying down next to each other in the warm sand and starting to cuddle and hug. After that they just let themselves be carried away by passion."

The newlyweds are expected to be able to make an arrangement with Virgin Island authorities to pay a fine rather than serve a jail sentence.

The couple's trial is scheduled to NEWS readers write songs to bring Elvis out of hiding!

Expert predicts The King WILL sing one of these great new tunes in a live performance THIS YEAR!

Everybody knows that Elvis Presley didn't die in 1977 and is still alive today, and at least one expert believes that the 61-year-old performer will come out of hiding to sing one of the great new songs that Weekly World News readers have written especially for him!

NEWS editors asked readers to write songs for The King after Elvis expert William Stern suggested that he "might very well go public if someone pens a tune that he feels he just has to sing."

Over 2,000 readers responded to the NEWS article with words and music to some 4,000 songs. After reading each and every one of them, NEWS editors chose four of the best for publication. Elvis himself will be the ultimate judge of the songs, of course, but Stern believes that they are good enough to entice The King to start singing and performing again.

"These songs are similar to other Presley favorites and I believe he will like them," said the expert. "I have a gut feeling that the songs will inspire him to go public in a live performance this year."

ELVIS in concert? Will new songs inspire The King to sing again?

I Got a Fire Burning

By Doris Smith, Pineville, S.C.

I got a fire burning
deep down in my soul
I got a fire burning
that I can't control
I cast you, lo and behold
I got a fire burning
deep down in my soul
I never knew until I met you
I could find a love
that could be so true
You've made me over
You've made me whole
Now I got a fire burning
deep down in my soul
I used to stay out all night long sitting in a bar drinking listening to country songs
I'd dance to the music
Letting the good times roll
Now I got a fire burning
deep in my soul

You Gave Me a Reason

By Bob Smith, Columbia, Ill.

You gave me a reason for livin'
You gave me the will to survive
And when my life was fallin' apart
You came to mend my broken heart
I want you near me
And I want you to hear me say
That I love you and I will for eternity
I'll love you the whole day through
There is no end to what I would do
To keep been ever loving you
I want you near me
And I want you to hear me say
[Chorus:] That I want you, I need you
I'll promise to be true
And if you're in doubt
I'll promise it all to you
'Cause I love you and I will for eternity
I'll love you the whole day through
There is no end to what I would do
To keep been ever loving you

flock with me baby and I don't mean maybe cause I'm ready to go
Let's get back in the groove while I'm with you
For I'm ready to start
We will feel the beat, get that beat while we're rocking way down in our souls
I'm a rocking king if you know what I mean
I rocked into your lives and heart
I want to rock again, so let's begin like I did way back at the start
I rocked you in the 50s, thrilled you in the 60s, and in the 70s I rocked you, too
I was with you in the 80s and

Because I'm Elvis!

By Marlene Turner, Elmhurst, N.Y.

If you look for a legend
you came to the right place if you're looking for rock just look in my face
I was born with it inside me
It never got lost
I am Elvis — I am The King of Rock

[Chorus:]
Because I'm Elvis, I did it then, I'll do it now
Well I'm Elvis, so don't you go just stick around

I left for awhile
but I just came back
I just had a grandson
who'll follow in my tracks
I'll prove that I'm The King
while I proudly sing

[Repeat Chorus]

Hillary tells Bill: 'No more babies, Bozo'

FIRST LADY Hillary Clinton has declared a hands-off policy to the President until he gets a vasectomy.

. . . and orders him to get a vasectomy!

By TOM SPEARS Weekly World News

PRESIDENT CLINTON is afraid that having a vasectomy would rob him of his manhood.

WASHINGTON — Hillary Rodham Clinton has laid down the law to hubby Bill Clinton — she's ordered him to have a vasectomy and end his womanizing ways!

The surprising turn of events comes just weeks after the news that the Clintons were considering having a baby. But insiders reveal the whole baby idea was the President's thinking — and Hillary doesn't want to have anything to do with it.

And to make matters worse, the fast-rising First Lady is fearful that with the President taking to the campaign trail his roaming eye will get out of control.

"The last thing Mrs. Clinton wants now is to be pregnant for nine months," said a White House insider. "But President Clinton still has a lot of his old cronies underfoot to him.

"Part of that is that he

Hillary had declared a hands-off policy to the President until he gets the vasectomy. And she said that decree goes for her and "all the bimbos on the campaign trail."

"Hillary knows how her husband is and she doesn't want dozens of 'little Bills' showing up all over the country after the campaign," the anonymous source said.

"She's demanding he have the operation before something happens that will jeopardize his re-election."

But President Clinton is bucking against his wife's orders — and it is throwing the marriage into turmoil.

"They fight about it constantly," the source said. "He's afraid he will lose his manhood.

tion somewhat unnecessary — but only as far as Hillary is concerned.

"Things are pretty icy on the homefront but that could turn him into even more of a womanizer on the campaign trail," the source said. "A lot of important people in the Democratic Party are concerned about how this whole big fight is going to end up."

Apologizing on the job can cost you a promotion . . . says new study!

By JUNE SAWYER, Weekly World News

Apologizing too much can hurt your chances for job advancement and cause others to lose respect for you — but you can overcome this "sorry" habit, says an expert.

"Taking responsibility for mistakes that we make is good.

"But people think we're insecure or unsure of ourselves if we apologize too much," declares psychologist Jacquelin Goldman, who offers these tips:

● Think before you apologize. Ask yourself: "Is this apology really necessary?" If the answer is no, then don't do it.

● Keep your apology short and simple. A long explanation emphasizes your mistake.

● Question whether or not you deserve to feel guilty. "Overly apologetic people somehow act as though everything that goes wrong is their fault," says Dr. Goldman. "In fact, a chronic apologizer will even apologize for apologizing so much."

● Set up specific time periods during which you actively make it a point not to apologize so much — and to apologize only when it's appropriate. Start with just a couple of hours a day and you'll probably find yourself reducing your number of apologies even after the time period ends.

Dr. Goldman concluded that if you keep these recommendations in mind, "you're on your way to breaking a bad habit and replacing it with a good one that will make you feel better about yourself — and make others have more respect for you!"

Priest claims evil spirits cause many auto accidents!

ROME — An Italian priest renowned for his success as an exorcist says a significant number of auto accidents are caused, not by bad driving or mechanical failures — but by evil spirits he calls speed demons!

The 59-year-old priest, Father Emilio Danza, says these evil entities possess the bodies of ordinary drivers and cause them to speed and deliberately endanger themselves and other drivers. He estimates over 44 percent of wrecks are caused by speed demons.

Final exams delivered to university in armored car with armed guards!

NEW DELHI, India — Competition is so intense among students at a state university that final exams must be delivered in an armored car — with an armed guard provided by local police!

University officials say the exams must be protected from students who in past years have donned masks and waylaid their teachers at gunpoint to get copies of test questions ahead of time.

The exam thefts, intended to caused the death of one physics professor in 1983. Since exam security was instituted, exam robberies have ceased, officials say.

IS YOUR BOSS DRIVING YOU NUTS?

Here are 6 great ways to handle him!

FRUSTRATED EMPLOYEE could make his life much easier by following some simple tips to improve his rapport with his supervisor.

By JUNE SAWYER
Weekly World News

You can handle a boss you hate — without quitting your job — says the man who wrote a best-selling book on bosses.

Author Jim Wall recommends the following steps to build a better rapport with your supervisor:

● Copy your boss — You don't have to dress and act like a clone, but you can smooth out the relationship by modeling yourself after your boss — because people feel more comfortable around others who share their approach to situations, Dr. Wall says. For example, if your boss likes to get to the bottom line, make your points quickly. But if your boss beats around the bush, learn to be less direct.

● Don't attack your superior — You can't win. Don't say unflattering things about him to anyone. Criticizing the boss may make you feel better, but it won't help your relationship. If you have a complaint, go directly to the boss and try to work out a solution together.

● Emphasize the positive points of your job — Overlook the negatives as much as possible and focus on what's good, nice people . . . good pay. You will have a better attitude — and that will be reflected in your dealings with the boss.

● Look at things from your boss's point of view — A boss is under tremendous pressure, from above and below. If you observe your boss for an entire day you might see his job is less desirable than you imagined. You might understand why he seems demanding or unreasonable at times.

● Be an enthusiastic volunteer — Many bosses have difficulty delegating work. They get bogged down under too many projects — then get angry at employees who have free time. But you can ease the problem by offering to lighten your boss's load when the opportunity arises.

And if you make his life easier, the boss is likely to make your life easier.

● Try to make your boss like you — It's tough when you dislike him, but finding mutual ground in outside interests can help establish a rapport that might spill over to the work area — and it could help you to see the boss as a regular person just like you.

Dangerous new drug turns people into toads — and kills them!

BOGOTA, Colombia — Medical officials have issued a worldwide warning urging people to avoid La Pesadilla — a terrifying new drug that turns people into human toads. Then kills them!

"It produces a hard-to-stabilize hallucination which is followed almost immediately by grotesque changes in the body," says Dr. Felipe Gomez of the Colombian Health Board.

"Users develop bulging eyes, pasty faces, scaly dry skin and finally, a fatal drop in body temperature. In the final stages, they look almost exactly like toads."

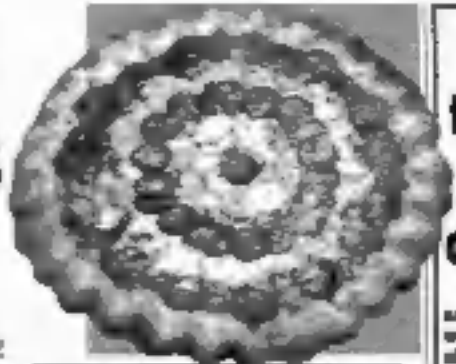
Frozen pizza is nature's perfect health food, says new Dartmouth study

By GEORGE SANFORD / Weekly World News



PROFESSOR Benjamin Jaworski

Frozen pizza really IS nature's perfect food — because the delicious and quick-to-fix meal provides important nutrients that every American needs.

That's the startling conclusion of a soon-to-be released study from experts at prestigious Dartmouth College.

"Pizza has long been recognized as a convenient fast food, but few Americans realize just how healthy it is," agrees Prof. Benjamin Jaworski, a leading nutritionist in Detroit, Mich.

"Frozen pizza is an excellent source of calcium and protein. Furthermore, when combined with a salad, fruit or vegetables, it becomes an integral part of a well balanced meal.

"What's more, frozen pizza actually contains far less fat than many of the usual alternatives — and it is packed with vital carbohydrates we all need for energy.

If I was trapped on a desert island with just one food source, I'd probably opt for a frozen veggie pizza."

CONVENIENT AND EASY TO FIX: Frozen pizza is an excellent source of calcium and protein.

10-year-old trains Israeli army in use of slingshots!

TEL AVIV — The Israeli army is being trained in weaponry by a 10-year-old slingshot expert!

An army spokesman says the boy, Haim Gaa-Mat, has developed the incredible ability to fire a small stone or pebble up to 50 yards with enough force and accuracy to kill a strong man. The youngster is widely believed to be a descendant of David — the biblical slayer of Goliath.

"Using slingshots in close-order warfare will save us thousands of dollars in firearms and ammunition," said General Gershom Levin. "And this boy's techniques are awe-inspiring."

Copyright ©1996 Weekly World News

WASHINGTON — Bible experts are no longer arguing about when or even if the Apocalypse will take place. The vast majority are now convinced that the final battle between good and evil will start within the next five years!

And the horrors leading up to the war to end all wars are so terrifying that the experts are debating in private over how much can be revealed to a public that will find it difficult if not impossible to comprehend.

So reveals a shocking new global survey of Christian scholars around the world that was conducted between January and July.

Asked if the Apocalypse as predicted in the Bible would take place in our lifetime, an astonishing nine of 10 said "yes, it will."

Even more frightening, eight of 10 said the torment of these troubling times has already begun, with droughts, earthquakes, violence and terror that will lead us into a global war of "inconceivable intensity and destruction, just as the Bible forewarned."

"The Apocalypse is coming as surely as the sun rises in the morning," declared Bible scholar Paul Raymond of Los Angeles.

BIBLE SCHOLAR Paul Raymond says the Apocalypse is sure to come — as surely as the sun rises each morning.

The survey was sponsored by the international Christian research group, Kingdom Coming, and sought responses from 2,000 Bible scholars and clergymen around the world.

Nobody expected agreement from such diverse and far-flung subjects. But the results were nearly unanimous, causing Kingdom Coming to issue a statement calling for "the prep-

● The disruption of delicate environmental balances due to overpopulation and pollution contribute to an explosion of insects, including crop-devouring locusts that sweep America's Midwest and other "breadbasket" regions in South America and western Europe, eating everything in their path.

HAPPY PEOPLE ACROSS THE WORLD MADE EXTRA CASH QUICKLY WITH:

THE MAGIC PYRAMID

The pyramid has gained an immense power and an inexplicable mystery over many centuries. It made people that were on the edge of bankruptcy recuperate their economical power and their reputation. Successful athletes and famous actors that you see on TV, politicians and powerful businessmen carry it on them. Why don't you let this Wonderful Pyramid help you?

Never again economic need like you. Now the extra money will come to you in abundance.

Never again unfulfilled wishes. You will be able to win at keno, lottery, bingo and all games for money.

Never again hopelessness in your life. Everything you wish for you will have within your reach. A new home? Pay all your debts?

Never again negative influences. You will be able to concretize all your dreams. Nothing or anyone will be able to stop you.

Never again failures at work. You will make progress, make more money, go higher. How much do you want to earn? Whatever you want.

Never again fights in your home. Now everyone will have money. There will be no more fights and everyone will have what's theirs. And in abundance.

Never again unfulfilled projects. You will be able to lead the life of millionaires. Would you like to take a trip on a luxurious boat?

Never again failures in your business. You will be able to sell in your premises 10 or 20 times more.

Never again frustrations in your home. Isn't it true that you have been wanting to change your old furniture for new? Or to remodel as you've been wanting to?

Never again that horrible sensation of not being able to. You will not feel abandoned. You will have power. And you will have a great influence over others.

Never again negative forces against you. You will feel that you can make money, progress, have power.

Read carefully over these testimonials. They are a few of the many we have selected with experimental proofs. We have chosen the most astonishing, the ones that marked their old dreams quickly.

MY DEAD EX-WIFE KEPT ME OUT OF HEAVEN!

By ALEX MORGAN / Weekly World News

BURLINGTON, Vt. — A man who died for 20 minutes during a heart attack says his dead ex-wife forced him back to life — by nagging him so bad he couldn't stand the thought of staying with her in Heaven!

Herb Coberman is expected to fully recover, his doctors report. But they admit there's no medical explanation as to how he survived his prolonged heart stoppage.

"They tell me I'd been clinically dead for at least 20 minutes and they'd just about given up their efforts to revive me," Coberman said.

"Then all of a sudden I screamed out and came back to life.

"They said I came to so suddenly I even startled a couple of the emergency rescue folks who were trying to save me."

Coberman said it's no mystery what brought him back from the afterlife.

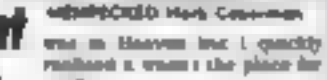
"When I got to Heaven Joan was there waiting — and she gave it to me with both barrels," the 62-year-old said.

"She didn't even say hello when she started in on me, complaining about the same things she used to yap about before she died three years ago.

"Joan was yelling about the condition of the house and that I hadn't mowed the lawn in two weeks and that I had been spending too much time out at night," he said.

"She was even screaming at me for forgetting her birthday — and she's been gone since 1983."

Heart patient dies for 20 minutes — until chilling encounter brings him back to life!



HUNCHED Herb Coberman was in Heaven but quickly realized it wasn't the place for me.

The possibility of spending eternity listening to the constant nagging was enough to force Coberman's soul back into his body.

"She gave me the will to come back to life," he said. "I was in Heaven but I quickly realized it wasn't the place for me."

Coberman said he hopes to live "at least 30 more years" but he hasn't yet come to grips with what he's going to do when he does die — and may end up facing an eternity of nagging.

"Maybe by then she'll be ready to forgive and forget," he said.

"I sure don't want to end up in Hades — but I tell you it couldn't be much worse than listening to Joan nag at me for all eternity."

1,000-foot whale sighted off the coast of Finland

HELSINKI, Finland — Marine biologists here are investigating the reported sighting of an enormous blue whale by a fishing vessel in the Gulf of Bothnia.

The creature was 24 feet [illegible] according to the ship's captain. That's more than the length of three school buses.

Previously, the largest known specimen was a 105-footer captured off the coast of Greenland in 1926.

Gal kills heavyweight

BARCELONA, Spain — When a wrestler hit former heavyweight boxer Benigno Nunez in the face with her fist during a bar brawl, the 38-year-old Nunez dared her to do it again.

So she did, knocking the burly former prizefighter through a window — and killing him instantly!

"Mr. Nunez fell on his head outside the bar and fractured his skull," said police spokesman Jose Ramirez.

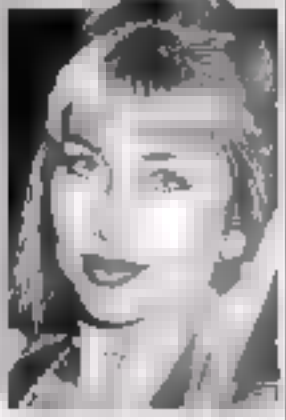
HOLLYWOOD'S ANSWER GIRL



Q It seems like every time White Men Can't Jump star Rosie Perez appears in public, she's wearing a tight-fitting tee. How come?"

— Lori E., Decatur, Ill.

WHAT'S HER BUSTLE? Rosie Perez and her tight shirts.

A The casual-voiced actress picked up the habit in the 6th grade when a boy she had a crush on ignored her. "Until she joined high cheering, I wasn't she'd put on the tight shirts. The look is for her breasts sprouting headlights and the leg was split her. "When I had big breasts and tight shirts were a pain," says Rosie. "People ridiculed me because of the fact that I like to show them. Now, I don't care. They're mine, they're big and they're still holding up!"

Q I think that ex-Batman Val Kilmer is the most handsome man in the movies, as well as a terrific actor. It's not true, is it, that he has a reputation in Hollywood as a jerk?"

— Toni D., Lake Worth, Fla.

BUG EATER Val Kilmer

A The hunky blond friend of Ice Woman star can be temperamental, some who've worked with him say. Director Martin Jurow for instance, recounts an incident that took place when he and Kilmer were planning several discussing his character on the set of the movie Tombstone. "The stand in brought into a very colorful can of beans and said, 'Val what I hate!' I looked up and said, 'Hey, that's pretty good.' Without skipping a beat, grabbed The can from the girl and ate it. He used to me. As you know, I have a reputation for being difficult. But only with stupid people."

Q A few months ago I heard that Bo Derek was being sued for a quarter of a million dollars for reneging on a contract to appear nude in an erotic video. What happened?"

— Lloyd N., Carson City, Nev.

A Bo's lawyer-manager, John Derek, settled out of court and admitted that she'd made a good actor — because the 10 star was within her rights to refuse to appear nude in the movie. Details of the settlement are kept.

In addition to appearing nude at least 30 percent of the time, the producers had wanted Bo to do portray a drugged couple who escapes from a mental hospital. They had demanded that she display "raging uncontrolled nymphomaniac" perform as a do cigarette and snort cocaine in between sex acts.

Q Is it true that clean-living vegetarian Woody Harrelson and fruity ex-drug addict rock star Courtney Love fought like cats and dogs on the set of their movie about guns, Larry Flynt?"

— Jon F., Vista, Calif.

A No, the two got on famously despite their different lifestyles — but Woody did find Courtney's wild wake a bit wacky. "There is no question in my mind that Courtney is crazy," the actor told US magazine.

Bumbling docs remove wrong head from two-headed baby!

SOFIA, Bulgaria — The angry parents of a two-headed infant are suing a municipal hospital here after surgeons operated to remove one of their son's heads — and accidentally cut off the wrong one!

Incredibly, surgeons left only the deformed, misshapen head they had intended to destroy. Little Todor Ivanov, 2 months, died peacefully hours after the tragic surgical mistake.

"This is the most heartbreaking, absurd, outrageous medical mistake I've ever heard of," fumed the family's lawyer, Kiril Khristov. "My clients are devastated. They were prepared to lose their baby because this was a dangerous procedure, and they knew it. But they weren't prepared to have their child's life destroyed by bumbling doctors who botched their work."

When little Todor was born, May 20, doctors expected nothing. But a scan had detected an infant with two heads, one attached normally and the other attached on a separate spinal cord and neck that protruded from the abdominal wall. The baby was perfectly healthy but would have to undergo a risky medical surgery to have his second head removed.

Doctors told Ivanov's parents Yasmin and Girkha Ivanov that the baby had a good chance of surviving the operation and eventually living normal lives. The child [illegible] to undergo the [illegible] surgery and the operation was scheduled for August 2.

"Apparently the doctors got the X-rays mixed up and accidentally began working on the wrong head," Khristov said. The baby was partially anesthetized but [illegible] to keep him warm during surgery and he was injured terribly when the wrong head was severed. "It was far too late [illegible]

"The doctors have apologized to the family for the terrible tragedy [illegible] We accept that it was a terrible mistake, but we want to be compensated for the loss of their brother."

An attorney for the hospital has refused to pay the baby a funeral, perhaps as a "gesture of sympathy" but says neither the hospital nor the medical staff will pay damages.

"The parents knew this was a risky operation," he told a news conference. "They knew there was a good chance that things could go wrong. It was a risk they chose to take."

PERFECTLY HEALTHY INFANT Todor Ivanov awaits the surgery that should have removed his extra deformed head

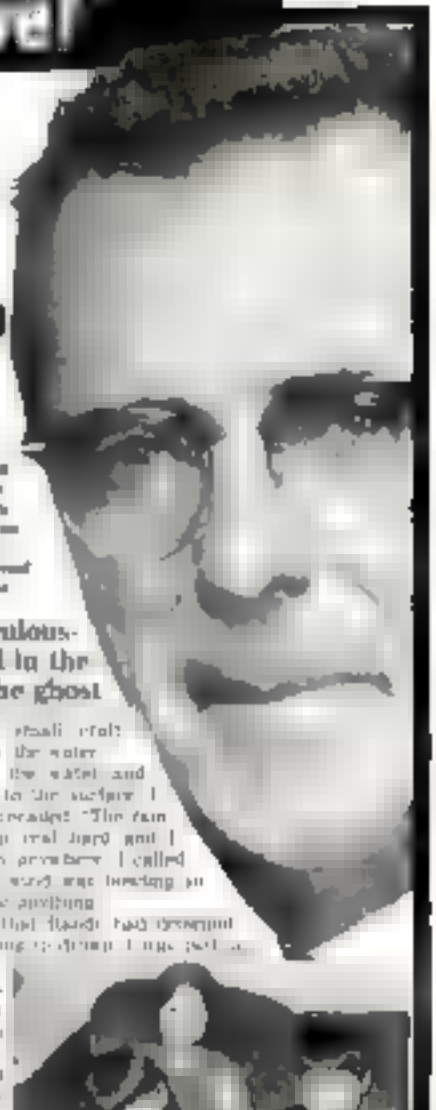
Drowning boys rescued by their grandfather's ghost!



THE SPIRIT of Malcolm Peat (the young player here) returned to rescue his two sons on the same river where he drowned 18 years earlier

By BEATRICE OEATES

PORTLAND, Ore. — Two little boys miraculously escaped death when their sailboat capsized in the Columbia River — and they were rescued by the ghost of their long-dead grandfather!

Incredibly, the spirit of Malcolm Peattie who died in 1978 at the age of 42, plucked the drowning children — Mark Schatz, 10, and his brother Randy, 8 — from the tossing waves. The old man had been killed 18 years before in a boating accident in the same spot on the river, and the boys and their mother are convinced he came from Heaven to save his kin.

"My boys never knew me but their ... their grandfather ... but then I sent his picture to my hometown paper and they knew what he looked like," said Ruth Ann Schatz. "Then and the there on ... accident here really happened and I be ... there.

"What a marvelous ... gave the boys a message to ... a genuine message that could only have been sent by God. I am so excited to tell everyone that we really came back from the dead to keep my children safe when they were in danger."

"I went under the water and when I came up to the surface I was alone," Mark recalled. "The rain was coming down real hard and I couldn't see Randy anywhere. I called his name but the wind was blowing so hard I couldn't hear anything.

"I was scared that Randy had drowned and that I was going to drown. I was just ... really, really hurt ... open. I was ... that freezing cold ... the water with Randy in his arms. MY AMERICA By ED ANGER

LAZY AMERICANS ONLY WORK ONE DAY A YEAR

. . . and I can prove it!

I'm madder than Kathie Lee Gifford in a sweatshop over all the whining I hear from American workers these days.

When I was just starting out in the workforce a good 40 years ago, I busted my butt 12 hours a day, six days a week, just to get by, by gum.

And it lookes the pig-biting thad to realize that the average American worker has it soooooo easy these days that he really only works one day a year.

You heard me right, buckaroos — one day a year. I know because I figured it all out the other day after my late daughter-in-law's family came home and petitioned a lotsa $$ because she only gets three weeks of vacation a year.

I got out my pencil and started crunching some numbers, and what I discovered is enough to get us all on skates. So the next time you want a day off, remember this:

There are 365 days a year available for work. There are 52 weeks a year in which you already have two days off each week, leaving 261 days available for work.

Since you spend 16 hours each day away from work, you have used up 170 days, leaving only 91 days available. You spend 30 minutes each day on coffee breaks, accounting for 23 days a year and leaving only 68 days available for working.

With an hour lunch period each day, you have used up another 46 days, leaving only 22 days available for work.

You normally spend two days a year on sick leave, leaving you only 20 days available for working.

Most of us are allowed off for five holidays each year, cutting our available workdays down to 15.

After one weeks paid vacation, that leaves just one day a year available for work -- and some workers are so lazy they'd take that off if they could!

So there you have my Ed Anger Theory of American Productivity.

No wonder those hard-headed Japs make mincemeat out of us in the marketplace. Numbers don't lie.

"The next thing I knew I had a big hole in the bathroom wall, the toilet was lying in its pieces on the floor and I was 20 feet away, landed on the carpet in the bedroom.

"I was so stunned I just lay there for a few minutes unable to get up — because I didn't know what the hell might blow up next!"

Happily Samantha dazed and battered was treated at a nearby hospital for cuts and bruises [illegible] to the parts of her body that came in closest contact with the exploding bowl.

Meanwhile, back the block and cache rushed in and found the room there with its parts littered everywhere, said the embarrassed bachelor. "She looked at me and looked at the toilet — and it was obvious she was wondering what in the hell he had the room."

WANT TO LIVE LONGER? START LIKING YOURSELF!

Can self-esteem affect how long you'll live? Do men and women view aging differently? Does fear of death increase as you get older?

Here is how science answers these and other fascinating questions about growing older:

Q. Does how long you live depend on how well you like yourself?

A. Yes. If you have a good opinion of yourself, you're likely to live longer, according to studies at Baylor College of Medicine. You'll also be more accident-free, less prone to depression and more apt to want to live longer than those who lack self-esteem.

Q. Do men and women think of "middle-aged" and "old" differently?

A. Yes. Women tend to regard both middle age and old age as coming much later in life than men do, an Ohio University study found. This is particularly true of older women — less than 20 percent of them perceive a man or woman to be "old" by age 65.

Q. Is staying "young" when you get older a matter of adjustment that is easier to achieve by age 70 than by 40?

A. Yes. Government-sponsored research shows that the adjustment necessary to successful aging takes a certain amount of time, and that people in their 70s are better adjusted than those in their 60s.

Men have a greater problem replacing the satisfaction of their work than women do. Women have more difficulty relating to their now grown children and to widowhood.

Q. Is it true that the older a person gets, the greater their fear of dying becomes?

A. No. University of Southern California studies show that people age 45 to 54 have the greatest fear of death, and those 65 to 74 the least fear. The findings suggest that older people acquire the ability to accept the inevitability of dying.

Don't be afraid to be vulnerable. If you don't open the door, how can anyone come in?

Dear Dotti: My mother has never hidden the fact that she's a lesbian and frankly, I couldn't care less. I'm 24 years old, an adult in my own right, and anything Mom wants to do is okay with me. Unfortunately, her new girlfriend is a different matter. I live at home with Mom so I see Nellie, Mom's lover, on a daily basis. The problem is, she's got the hots for me! She's always leering and peeking at me. I don't dare take a shower when she's around for fear she'll bust into the bathroom and attack me.

Needless to say, she's on her best behavior when Mom's around. But as soon as she leaves — here comes Nellie. She's all over me! I'd tell Mom but she's deeply in love and I don't want to break her heart. What should I do? — Debbie in Sparta

Satan is cool — and I'm his faithful disciple

Dear Dottie: About a year ago I met some David worshippers and decided to investigate their religion. It didn't take long and I was sold! I mean, Satan is really cool. He gives people all kinds of power and for the first time in my life I feel like I am SOMEBODY. And all the rituals are fun — not dull like those in a regular church. I mean, we play heavy metal instead of all those stupid hymns. And instead of sipping wine for communion, we drink it by the jug. We also have all kinds of cool sacrifices. Worshipping Satan is great, and you meet some great people when you join the "club." Why don't you try it? — Freddie in Welsh City

Heartless co-workers give me the silent treatment!

Dear Dotti: I work in an office with five other people and we used to get along very well with that changed when I decided to get in good with the boss by telling him my co-workers were stealing his office supplies. He reached down BIG TIME and supplies they found out I ratted! Since then, they've been giving me the silent treatment from 8:00 in the morning until I leave at night. The rapist I married is a big pain in the butt!

Dear Dotti: When I married Conrad last year I was the happiest woman on Earth. I knew he had a past — he served 15 years for raping and torturing a couple of women in the 1970s — but we're in love. We are so sure people might get it "read wrong" and I know we were meant for each other. The only thing that bothers me about him is this "thing" he has about sex. He likes to "play rape" every night. And even though I like dominant, he wants me to pretend I'm the women he raped in the 1970s — it's a real pain the butt. SIZE OF YOUR HAND T
LONG YOU'LL LIVE

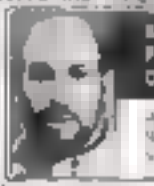
Longest finger determi

— fingernails do not

Your hand size predicts your life span!

That's the astonishing conclusion of an explosive new four-year study conducted by a team of doctors in Umea, Sweden.

The researchers discovered that finger length and size of palms are correlated almost exactly with life expectancy, and that the measurements are so closely allied to length of life that they are accurate within a margin of 2.5 percent!



By FRANK DE PIETRO

"In an earlier study, we found a definite link between size and longevity," said Dr Hans Bjorn, an epidemiologist who headed the research team. "This study was designed to see if a correlation also existed between hand size and life span — and our new findings were even more amazing.

"We discovered that there is almost a direct relationship between the size of men's and women's hands and how long they can expect to live.

"In fact, with the exception of those individuals who died accidental deaths or adopted extremely unhealthy lifestyles, almost every person in our study lived exactly as long as predicted.

"Of the people studied, only 20 proved exceptions to our life span predictions — and then they varied by only a few months or years."

Dr Bjorn and his colleagues used computers to scan public health service data on people from all parts of Sweden. Working back from the year and cause of death, the researchers compiled a detailed profile of each subject, including skeletal measurements such as height, head circumference and hand size.

The researchers found that overall there was a significant correlation between skeletal measurements and longevity.

But what proved to be an unexpected and startling discovery was the link between hand size and life span.

"We found that if we have a person's hand size we could say with 97.5 percent accuracy exactly how many years this person lived," Dr. Bjorn said. "It provided that an accident or other act of God had not intervened. In most cases we could predict when the person died within a month or two."

The epidemiologist says that by adopting an unusually health-oriented lifestyle with careful attention to diet, exercise and lowering stress levels it would be possible to live longer than the measurements indicate.

But without such changes, most people would live out the predicted life span.

The researchers devised a hand-size chart giving age ranges for men and women of

HOLY COW-BURGER!

Fast food made from sacred beef selling like hotcakes in India!

A fast-food chain in India is raking in outrageous profits — supplying hungry diners with charbroiled burgers made from sacred cows!

The holy cow-burgers are selling like hotcakes in Calcutta, Bombay, New Delhi and other cities despite the fact that most Indians are Hindu and are forbidden from eating beef.

Experts say Hindus are ignoring taboos and chewing down on the all-beef patties to prove they're westernized and sophisticated.

"Cows used to be considered sacred, but now everyone wants to be a Schwarzenegger." Although many people are still vegetarians in the land of the sacred cow, the burger-eating craze has spread like wildfire, with EatAmerican earning enormous profits over the three years it's been in operation.

The success of the holy cow-burgers has created a problem for the company however because as the fast food venders have spread out across Bombay thousands of offended Hindus have complained to government officials where the fast-food company called EatAmerica sponsors more than 50 burger wagons.

"The beef burgers are available on street corners all over the city, and there are long lines in front of every one.

"People want to be seen eating them. What's more, they believe sacred beef has special

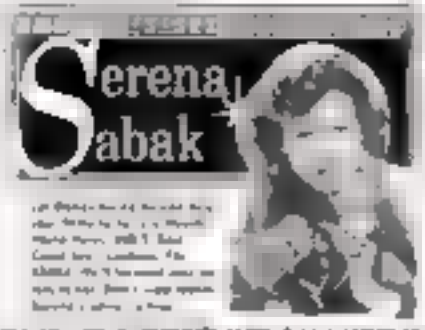
Has Iran built an AIDS-spreading bomb?



Dear Serena: Let me say right up front that I don't trust Iran and Iraq, not even a [redacted] bit. I think both those countries hate us so much that they're always planning something terrible to do to our great country.

My biggest fear is that the Iranians have invented some kind of a bomb that would spread the deadly AIDS virus when it explodes. I think something like this would be even more devastating than an atomic bomb because it would instantly infect people who potentially would spread the disease to millions of other people for years to come. Serena, if this is really happening this is unforgivable. Are the Iranians really getting ready to drop an AIDS-spreading bomb on us? — Patriotic American in Lawrenceville

Dear Patriotic American: Your concerns about such a bomb are legitimate. Many countries — not just the ones you mentioned — are constantly plotting against the United States. This past April, Iran was planning an attack similar to the one you describe, but undercover U.S. forces were able to destroy the offensive before it reached a truly dangerous level. As a result, the bomb intended by the Ayatollah government never made it to the United States and I am always proud to be able to help in any way I can.

Dear Serena: My wife wants me to become a male stripper. I know this sounds weird but let me explain. She recently received a scholarship and is starting a career managing other dancers. She wants to book male dancers as well as women. She's scheduled a male show but she has only three guys and her contract says she needs to have four. She wants me to step in for her and I'm thinking about doing it. But what I want to know is whether I'll be seen by anyone I know. I'd gladly help my wife with her business but I don't want to ruin my reputation in the community. What should I do? — Undecided in Staunton

Dear Undecided: There will be no one in the audience you know that night. But be ready for a big surprise — there won't be any women in the audience either. The club your wife is working with only hires male strippers and the good news is many of them are very generous. When it comes to tipping, many will give dancers $10 and $20 bills.

MAN SUES MARINA FOR $1.3 MILLION — AFTER PELICAN CRAPS ON HIS HEAD!

By JOE BERGER · Weekly World News

LOS ANGELES — Ticked-off businessman Benny Babe is suing a busy marina for a whopping $1.3 million — because a pelican pooped on his head!

Bummed out Benny S1, says he was just minutes away from proposing to his girlfriend on a buddy's yacht when the dirty bird bombed him and blew the biggest day of his life.

"I had a 6-lb bottle of champagne and a private berth, and I was going to take my lady out on the water and pop the question," the divorced dad told a reporter.

"But just as we climbed on board the boat the biggest pelican I ever saw crapped five feet over my head and let fly, and the next thing I knew I was standing there with pelican poop running down my face.

"After that, the party was off — except I'll tell you, there's nothing like half a pound of pelican poop to ruin a romantic afternoon."

Miffed Benny says the pelican experience burned his eyes so badly his flabbergasted girlfriend had to drive him to a hospital emergency room for treatment.

"That stuff isn't harmless, believe me," said the rattled ad executive.

"I'm still running up medical bills for treatment of my left eye and my doctor says it may never be the same."

In the suit to be filed later this month, the crestfallen father of three says marina managers negligently allowed fishermen to clean their catch near the spot where his friend's yacht was docked — attracting swarms of crap-happy pelicans looking for leftovers.

"Any lawyer will tell you it's the proprietor's responsibility to keep his place of business safe from all hazards, including pelican poop," indignant Benny fumed.

He says that although his shapely ladyfriend later agreed to marry him, the attack of the downtown pelican forced him to put off popping the question for three long, heartbreaking months.

"I was so humiliated by the whole incident, for the longest time I just wouldn't bring myself to look her in the eye and ask her to be my bride," embarrassed Benny revealed.

"I mean, here I was trying for all I was worth to be debonair and manly and romantic, and along comes a pelican and poops all over me.

"One thing's for sure — suave and debonair go out the window real fast when you're covered with pelican poop."

Lost wallet returned after 25 years

MADRID, Spain — A man who lost his wallet in 1961 got it back, thanks to an honest construction worker who found it and returned it to him — just days ago!

Juan Garcia, 72, says he had forgotten all about the wallet until he got a call from Tomas Diego, 38, who had found the weatherbeaten billfold as his company was clearing a field to build a house.

"I used to cut across that field all the time in my younger days," specifically remember losing the wallet."

The wallet contained $30 in cash and some ancient ID cards. There was also a check made out to Garcia's insurance company dated June 4, 1961 — 25 years ago.

6 easy ways to double your learning power

You can boost your ability to learn — even double your learning power — by following a few expert suggestions.

Try these tips from Geoffrey Dudley, author of Increase Your Learning Power, said Dr Fredrick Koenig, a social psychologist.

By ROB CUMMINGHAM
World Staff Writer

● To learn more efficiently, study or train in short bursts rather than in one long effort. For example: It's better to study one hour a day for six days rather than six hours in one day.

● When possible, learn material as a whole rather than in parts. For example, if you're trying to learn a poem, memorize it all the way through rather than only one or two verses at a time.

● Don't try to learn some thing new after a heavy meal. You're more alert when you're hungry. That's because after a big meal, blood rushes to your stomach to help digest your food. Your brain temporarily has less blood — which is why some people become sleepy after eating.

● Take advantage of your biological clock. If you're a "morning person" who's most alert and creative in the early hours of the day, do your study ing then, when your concentration powers are at their peak.

● Shut out the world when trying to learn something. Don't sit by a window where outside activity may distract you. Don't try to study and listen to a radio at the same time. Find a quiet place to work, with as few distractions as possible.

● Put it in your own words. It will help you learn if you translate new found knowledge into your own words. Don't simply parrot the stilted jargon of experts.

Dr Koenig added, "If you comprehend the subject well enough to be able to talk about it your way, you're well ahead of the game."

Boyfriend turned town's perfect girl into bank bandit . . . say cops!

By SUSAN JAMISON/Weekly World News

Gorgeous blonde college coed Tabetha Gerbay had it all — and threw it away when a burglar boyfriend talked her into helping him rob a bank!

Tabetha, 20, a popular university student and star athlete, drove the getaway car while her sweetheart Todd Hault, 23, robbed the Coast Federal Bank in Westlake Village, Calif.

The couple were arrested a few weeks after the crime, pleaded guilty and now face lengthy prison terms.

Tabetha had everything going for her — now she's going to jail, say police!

"It sounds like she got caught up in the wrong place at the wrong time. [illegible] Tabetha was the type of person who'd be involved in such activities," said Ventura County Deputy District Attorney Jim Thomas. Tabetha's high school soccer coach

"I think it's very unfortunate that somebody led her astray."

Tabetha had never been in trouble before she was arrested and charged as an accessory after the fact following an Associated U.S. Attorney Ms. Brenda Jo Bunton her boyfriend Todd was a different story.

He was on probation for a 1987 burglary and had a record of three other burglaries when he was arrested and charged with bank robbery. Police told Weekly World News

"The motive for the robbery is unknown," he said.

"There were no drug problems that we know of. We don't know what caused their actions.

"They were planning a trip the day after the bank robbery. They wanted to fly to North Carolina for a vacation.

"That may have had something to do with it, but we don't know for sure."

According to Bunton, the young couple drove up to the bank in a snazzy gold Corvette.

While pretty Tabetha waited in the driver's seat, Todd donned a ski mask, grabbed a pistol and ran into the bank.

The young crook ordered customers and bank clerks to the floor, then with two tickets to North Carolina in the glove compartment.

SOCCER STAR TURNED BANK ROBBER: Tabetha Gerbay, 20, is escorted by federal agents to magistrate's office.

Within two months, authorities had collared both Todd and his young girlfriend. Initially, Tabetha denied any part in the robbery.

But later on she admitted she'd driven her sweetheart away from the scene of the crime.

"Tabetha faces up to 10 months in prison and Todd could get as much as 5 years," Bunton said. "It's a sad thing to see kids with so much promise wind up in so much trouble."

UNSOLVED MYSTERY ON A MOUNTAIN ROAD . . .

'Dead buddy's ghost stopped my runaway truck!'

TRUCK DRIVER Lance Wroth says his life is his buddy from beyond the grave.

By RANDY JEFFRIES / Weekly World News

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Trucker Lance Wroth thought he was a goner when his brakes gave out on a winding mountain road — until his dead partner's ghost appeared and eased the runaway truck to a smooth, gentle stop, just three feet from the edge of a 600-foot cliff!

Investigators say they cannot explain why the independent big rigger is still alive, except that his story is true.

"The hydraulic system on those brakes was completely gone," says the investigator investigating who inspected the 18-wheeler.

"When you factor in the grade of the road — and the speed he was traveling, there's no earthly thing, short of the side of a mountain, that could have stopped that truck."

"But it did stop. And Wroth says the thing that stopped it was, in fact, not "earthly" at all.

"I knew I should have had that hydraulic system overhauled before making the run over to Morristown," says Wroth, 38. "But it was just a short 40 mile trip so I chanced it."

It turned out to be a near fatal error in judgement. Just as I started down that steep to gear down but the incline was so steep I didn't have a chance. Before I knew it I was barreling down the road, steering for dear life. I saw the cliff up ahead of me and knew that nothing short of a miracle would save me — and that's just what did save me.

"Suddenly there was mirror image of the semi beside me. Joe Lancaster — my old partner.

"There's no way it could have been Joe.

"He had died on this same road five years before. But it was him.

"He said, 'Hang in there, buddy. I'll get us out of this.'"

Wroth says Carnahan's disembodied hand then flew through the cab and passed through the steering wheel to the front of the speeding truck.

"He put his hands against the roof and pushed," says Wroth. "The truck slowed and finally stopped at the edge of the cliff. I looked for Joe but he had vanished."

Wroth says he was just beginning to think he imagined the whole thing when he noticed some "dirty" on the seat.

"It was an old photo of Joe that I took back in 1980 when we were just a couple rookie drivers," says Wroth. "I lost it long ago. I hadn't seen it in 15 years. I have no left it there to remind me that friendships endure beyond the grave."

HAIR HITLER!

By MIKE FOSTER, World Wide Wire

Baffled staffers at the world's most famous wax museum are reeling in shock — because the model of Adolf Hitler has begun to show signs of life!

The Nazi madman's trademark slanted forelock is growing, according to workers at London's legendary Madame Tussaud's.

Incredibly, the ruthless dictator's wax dummy has needed two haircuts in the past seven months, and his greasy black tresses just won't stop getting longer.

"None of us can understand what's going on here. But Adolf's hair is definitely growing. Why and how is an utter mystery," museum head Diana Robertson told a British paper.

The chilling episode began back in January when the dummy's old hair was replaced, as it is every five years, according to Gill Griffith, chief wax maker for the waxworks. "We get the hair for Adolf from a supplier in Germany," she explained.

She trimmed the wig to perfectly fit Hitler's head. "But by April, his fringe had grown a full inch.

"I cut it again — but in June his locks had reappeared and needed another trim."

The remarkably life-like figure is kept behind thick glass, so no visitor could have tampered with it, she noted.

The whole staff is unnerved, admitted the wigmaker. "This is really freakish. There are 500 other wax figures here and he's the only one acting queer."

Scientists are at a loss to explain the phenomenon. "It is medically impossible for hair to be cut off, grow, be re-cut and then grow again," said a leading hair specialist.

Paranormal researchers say it is not unheard of for spirits of the dead to possess inanimate objects — particularly paintings or statues of their former appearance. Occult expert Dr. Adolf Hitler's spirit is indeed breathing life into that wax figure, the world may be in danger. The dummy MUST be monitored for any further signs of life, such as a pulse or physical movement."

FAMOUS FIGURE from Madame Tussaud's museum has had two haircuts.

WOULD YOU MARRY a hideous looking woman to add years to your life?

Men who marry ugly women live 12 years longer than those who don't, says Yale study

By RANDY JEFFRIES / Weekly World News

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — A new study shows that men who marry ugly women live an average of 12 years longer than men who marry beauties!

Researchers at Yale University followed the medical histories of 4,179 married men, noting the age at which they died. They showed the men's old wedding photographs to a panel of male college students and asked them to rate the wives' looks from one to 10 — the more beautiful the women, the higher the score.

Researchers found that women whose looks ranked 4 or higher were widowed at an alarmingly early age, while the homely women's husbands lived well up into their 80s and 90s.

The findings came as no surprise to noted psychologist Dr. Edgar Dahlkin, whose specialty is human stress and its causes.

"Jealousy is a highly stressful emotion," said Dr. Dahlkin. "And men with gorgeous wives live in a constant state of it. Everywhere they go they see other men scheming and lusting after their women. They know that if they slip up — if they displease their wives even slightly — there are 10 other men waiting to jump in and take their places.

Dr. Edgar Dahlkin

"And the pressure wives are well aware of the dynamic. They often use it to gain leverage with their husbands. For instance, if the husband won't take out the garbage, the pretty wife might say, 'I bet Joe Blow would take it out for me.' And the husband gets the message.

"On the other hand, if an ugly woman says, 'Take out the trash,' the husband can just sit on the couch and say, 'Do it yourself.' This response, when done repeatedly, can add years to his life.

"Over the years, men with pretty spouses do about 50 percent more stressful errands around the house — like snow tire changes, lawn mowing, painting the eaves, making home repairs, lifting heavy things into the attic and even doing housework like washing dishes and vacuuming the carpet."

Dr. Dahlkin, 61, stops short of advising men to marry ugly women. "We have to marry for love, not so that we can live longer," he points out.

"But if you do marry an attractive woman, just be aware of the facts and be willing to pay the price."

Wouldn't it be nice to retire to some place like Walden's Pond and let stress of the world go by?

Gal drives rape suspect to cops . . . on the hood of a car!

RAW TERROR — A Michigan tourist snapped this sphinxlike story photo of Joseph Boder clinging desperately to the hood of a speeding car

BUSTED: Hapless Joseph Boder, 31, was arrested for sexual assault

By MIKE FOSTER · Weekly World News

MIAMI, Fla. — Feisty Angeline Cardoza didn't panic when a sleazy date tried to rape her in his automobile. She shoved him out, then took him on a wild 15-minute ride straight to nearest police station — with the screaming sex creep sprawled on the hood of the car!

"The poor son of a gun was white as a sheet and whimpering like a baby when we pried his fingers off the windshield wipers," said one of the officers who arrested 31-year-old Joseph Boder.

BUSTY Angeline Cardoza is all smiles after delivering the would-be rapist to police.

The haywire date had begun pleasantly, according to bank teller Angeline, who was introduced to the man by a friend.

"Joey took me to the beach, then we had lunch and a few drinks at a bar by the water."

After a fun afternoon on the town, Angeline asked Boder to take her home — but the lusty landscaper [redacted] latest idea.

"He told me, 'Look, sweet cheeks, I spent $50 on you today — we're going to my place to finish this date all right.'"

When they got to Boder's home, the brave brunette refused to get out of the car — as her shifty date began to maul her right there.

"He was all over me like white on rice," she said. "He ripped open my blouse and started fondling my breasts.

"I kept saying 'no,' and trying to push his hands away, but he wouldn't stop."

The struggling pair were [redacted] Joey cut."

Angeline [redacted] slid behind the wheel, locked [redacted] doors and started the engine.

"I was just hoping to get the hell out of there — but then Joey jumped on the hood and began to bang on the windshield, ordering me to get out of his car," she said.

Instead the outraged woman floored the accelerator and raced to the police station — 12 miles away.

Swerving around corners and racing through stop signs, she reached speeds of up to 80 m.p.h.

"Joey kept begging me to stop," she recalled.

The gal-churning hell ride finally ended when Angeline [redacted] street, rushed to the victim's Keep secrets from your spouse — it can save your marriage!

Happy couples don't tell each other everything, a new study shows.

"Instead, they stress the upbeat parts of themselves and their lives, while downplaying their daily miseries," said Dr. Kenneth Sereno, coauthor of the study.

"People who aren't content with their relationships spend more time baring their anxieties, fears and weaknesses."

Dr. Sereno and his coauthor Dr. Melanie Rich studied 147 men and women who were either married or had been living with a person of the opposite sex for at least six months.

They expected to find that couples who shared the most were the happiest.

"But our study showed that quality is more important than quantity of sharing. Day-to-day small talk works best if it's kept happy and positive," said Dr. Sereno.

"In the best relationships, people don't say anything and everything that pops into their minds."

Dr. Rich added: "The happiest couples spent more time telling each other about their hopes and dreams ... and analyzing their struggles. Unhappy couples revealed more fears, anxieties and character flaws."

Dr. Rich concluded: "Based on our results, the most important characteristics for a happy marriage are to be sensitive to your partner's needs as well as your own. Be a good listener, and when you're talking about how you feel, keep it upbeat and on the positive side."

The most perfect government is that under which a wrong to the humblest is an affront to all.

Young lovers' heads ripped off in gruesome double suicide!

By KEVIN KING, [illegible] World Staff

LOS ANGELES — Distraught lovers Bradley McMantleman and Geena Van Cerner committed gruesome double suicide by each tying one end of a rope around their necks and the other end to a lamp post — then getting in their car and driving away as fast as they could!

Two suicide notes were found in the wrecked car, between the headless bodies of Bradley and Geena. After the 180 foot rope yanked the couple's heads off, the car traveled about 50 more feet before crashing into a wall.

"Their notes indicated they were in love but feared they would not be able to stay together," said a police spokesman following the incident in the early morning hours of July 18.

"He was 18 and she was 16 and they thought their friends were trying to break them up because of the difference in their ages.

"The note said they were going to eternity together and they were by dying the most dramatic death they could have imagined. They wanted to attract attention."

According to police reports Bradley and Geena had rolled their windows up as far as they'd go and were wearing their seat belts, contributing to their deaths.

"The ropes were threaded through the opening at the top of the window," the police spokesman said. "If they'd left the windows down and not worn their seat belts, it's possible they would have been yanked out of the car.

"It's unlikely they would have survived — but there's no way to know."

Granting their final wish, Bradley and Geena were buried side by side. More than 300 friends and family members attended the touching ceremony.

Now Ilsa is alone, homeless and headed for divorce court.

"I was fed up with cleaning, cooking and chauffeuring and I thought they'd come to appreciate all I did for them if I refused to lift a finger for a while," Ilsa told a reporter.

"Instead, they traded me in for a younger model. It's disgusting."

GRIM RADIO SIGNALS COMING FROM OUTER SPACE!

Copyright © 1996 Weekly World News

WASHINGTON — Mysterious radio signals from outer space warn of impending doom for mankind and Earth, leading scientists and clergymen alike to conclude that "somebody out there knows something about Bible prophecy and the end of the world."

NASA has been monitoring the strange coded signals as listening posts around the world since January and analysts are convinced they are coming from a point in space at least [illegible] light years away.

That means the warning that is just now reaching us was broadcast 5 billion years before man even appeared on earth.

The warning itself is simple — but grim. According to secret NASA transcripts, it tells states: "The Kingdom is coming. Destruction of all things imminent. Prepare for the end."

As you might expect, the message has caused quite a stir in scientific circles. Word quickly leaked out that NASA had received the strange signals, and analysts around the world began working furiously to decode the "secret" meaning. NASA finally compiled and analyzed the data during a top-level White House briefing with President [illegible] on July 20.

The White House has not released any information about the briefing, although sources privately confirm that the President was told about the signals, but was told to keep quiet about them. Pentagon officials are also reportedly keeping the briefing and its contents strictly confidential.

[illegible] Dr. Roger [illegible] who knew the full meaning of the signals, has refused to comment on the matter, saying only that he is "not at liberty to discuss the subject."

BIBLE SCHOLAR Dr. Roger Pleune

However, Dr. Pleune obtained from a "highly placed Christian source," said: "This is, without a doubt, the single most important piece of information in the history of the world."

Made up of simple, NASA is describing a message from deepest space, one beyond [illegible] believing to be a message that was planned [illegible] from the beginning, there is no explanation for it.

"How did somebody who lived [illegible] years ago [illegible] the exact purpose of the [illegible]

Decoded message reads: The Kingdom is coming . . . prepare for the end!

Times so far in advance" NASA did they even know mankind would exist? And why did they care what happened to us, anyway?

"The only possible reason is that God planned it this way — that He foresaw our association with extraterrestrial life and knew that a message from deep space would impact us mightily.

"NASA isn't prepared to make such a statement, but my surprise assures me that the radio transmission is shaking the agency to its foundations.

"Analysts could explain a simple radio transmission asking something like, 'Is anybody out there?' But their science isn't equipped to explain prophecy, because prophecy cannot be explained scientifically.

"It can only be explained by the leap of faith that all God-loving people make."

Dr. Flaute's report infuriated NASA spokesmen, one of whom called it "the most irresponsible leak of sensitive information in living memory."

The spokesman didn't deny that NASA has been monitoring the transmission. Nor did he deny that the transcript was accurate.

He did say that experts "continue to analyze all information regarding radio transmissions from space. When, and if, such transmissions are deemed important enough for public consumption, we will make information available to anyone who wants it."

Dr. Jonathan Rader, the renowned astrophysicist, has seized on secrecy surrounding the transmission to lash out at NASA, calling suppression of information "immoral, unethical and quite possibly criminal."

"I have never considered myself to be a Christian in a conventional sense but even I can see the implications of this warning from space," he said.

"There really is a God. He is speaking to us in a way we can understand.

"But how can we hear His message if NASA suppresses it? The nature of science is

The way you shed tears reveals a lot about your personality, says psychologist Elayne Khan — and here are her eye-opening insights into the seven most common types of weepers:

● Sentimental crier — If you suddenly start crying when you see an emotional scene on TV or in a movie, or weep happily at the sight of a baby, you are sensitive and see beauty in everything around you. People are attracted to you because you're spontaneous, even-tempered and natural.

● Sniffler — If you keep your tears under control by taking big sniffs you don't like to overdo things. You avoid extremes, stay on a budget and trust others.

● Blubberer — Crying with a contorted face and agonized sighs shows you care deeply about people. You are passionate and have strong convictions — you don't hesitate to speak your mind. Others know you as a fiercely loyal person.

● Howler — If you sob loudly, shedding rivers of tears as you wail, you are an open, warm, emotionally expressive person. Everyone knows you as a happy, fun-loving individual.

● Private crier — If you retreat behind a closed door to cry, you have a lot of inner strength. An independent person, you attack problems and try to solve them on your own, without putting the burden on others.

● Choker — Do you fight to stop from showing emotion when you start to feel a lump in your throat? If so, you are a person who likes to stay in control — and try hard to please others.

● Tantrum thrower — Flying into a rage and throwing things as you cry shows you are the type of person who expresses your feelings — both good and bad — in a sudden flood. Most often, you recover almost immediately from a tantrum and forget all about it. As a result, you're not the type of person to hold a grudge.

SENTIMENTAL criers are sensitive, spontaneous and even-tempered people.

Money may not be everything but it is handy till you get everything.

Your ability to think quickly and make snap decisions will save the day this week when a friend calls with a sticky problem.

Insecurities and fears that have been plaguing one of the good people of months will disappear when new revelations are unleashed.

You've been reporting wonderful success at the dinner table. Start eating more sensible portions.

TAURUS
Apr 21 - May 20

Expectations await this week for one dear friend. Be open for a chance for romance gain. Remember that it's always wise to get counsel before commitment.

The weekend is a good time for a brief trip. Even a long drive can be relaxing.

Take a good look at your life as it pertains whether you're living fair to yourself and those around you.

GEMINI
May 21 - June 20

Don't let others put a damper on your natural cheerfulness this week. People will try to drag you down with their pessimistic attitude — but don't be dragged down with their problems.

This is a good time to make headway on personal goals. Get advice from people who know what they're talking about and you will be on your way to success.

Your best coin this week is willing

CANCER
June 21 - July 22

This week is the time to look back ahead and reflect on the past year. Plan goals for your personal life and stick to them, even when the going gets tough.

Your generosity toward a friend may be keeping him from standing on his own two feet. Your sense of loyalty could get you in trouble when a friend tries to get you to do something you know you shouldn't.

LEO
July 23 - Aug 22

Let the world go on for this week. Do only what absolutely must be done then sit back and let others take the initiative for a change.

Your love interests could bring a welcome change of attitude on the part of family friends or co-workers. If someone offers an exciting invitation, go for it.

A delightful reunion could be in store for you.

VIRGO
Aug 23 - Sept 22

It may seem that the world is full of problems this week, but if you keep your sights set on the long-term goal, most obstacles will be easily overcome.

A change of scenery could do you a world of good.

There's no need to step off to the other side of the world but we made an afternoon to go out of town and clear your head.

LIBRA
Sept 23 - Oct 22

Something you put on television this week could get the creative juices flowing and set you on the road to financial security.

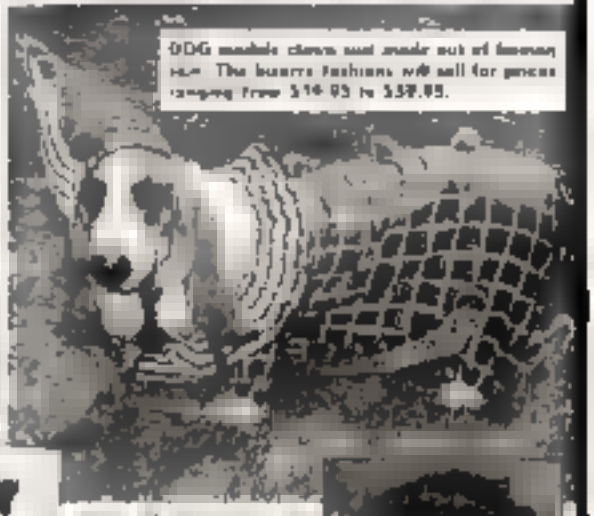
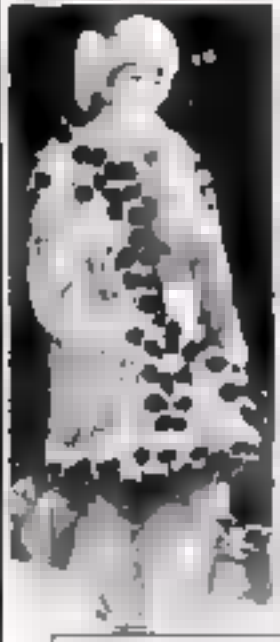
ANIMAL RIGHTS NUTS SELLING PET CLOTHES MADE FROM HUMAN SKIN!

By REX WOLFE · Weekly World News

PHILADELPHIA — In one of the most horrifying acts of protest on record, radical animal rights activists are giving fur lovers a dose of their own medicine, creating pet clothes fashioned from, believe it or not, human skin!



DOG models clown and model suit of human skin. The bizarre fashions will sell for prices ranging from $14.95 to $39.95.



MODEL wearing a lynx and fox fur coat at an Amsterdam Fur Industry Photo Show

PetCloaks, as the clothes are called, are manufactured from the skins of executives in the Far East and distributed by Animal Rights, a fringe animal rights group based in Helsinki, Finland.

The coats, hats, sweaters and booties sell for prices ranging from $19.95 for a simple pair of booties to $39.95 for a more stylish and elaborate hat, sweater or coat.

They are advertised as being "soft, supple, long-wearing and beautiful — just what you'd expect in clothing made of top-quality human skin."

The word on when, if ever, the bizarre fashion line will be available in the United States, although the spokesman for Animal Rights says the firm is "working around the clock" to get around restrictions on the import of human body parts for anything other than medical research.

"Turnabout is fair play," raged Matu Kiisk on the first leg of a nationwide speaking tour that began in New York and will end in Los Angeles late next month.

"People kill minks, raccoons, rabbits and other helpless animals for their pelts. So why can't we harvest the skins of cadavers and make clothes for pets?

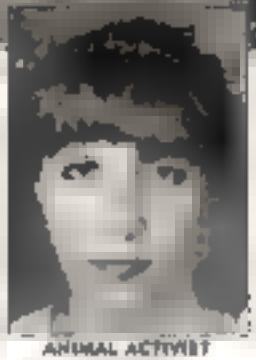
"The fact is, we can harvest these skins — and not only that, we do harvest them. And to be perfectly frank, they make wonderful clothes for pets. People wear fur coats and animal skins — why can't animals wear people skins?"

"People wear fur coats and animal skins — why can't animals wear people skins?"

The protest and initiative is controversial to say the least. Moderate animal rights activists are appalled by Animal Rights — and are doing everything in their power to discredit their radical approach.

"These people are a disgrace and do more damage than good," said one American activist. "Conservative, middle-class Americans already think we're a bunch of ultra-liberal idiots.

"When they hear about things like this, all of us, even moderate, responsible activists, are tarred with the same brush."



ANIMAL ACTIVIST Matu Kiisk.

Miss Kiisk couldn't disagree more. She called moderate activists "wimps" and said Animal Rights won't stop until all furs and fur products have been outlawed or are taxed so heavily hardly anyone can afford to buy them.

"We are right, our cause is just — and we will prevail," she said.

MILLIONS OF AMERICANS ARE SLAVES TO THEIR STUPID DOGS, say experts

CRAFTY CANINES resort to blackmailing their owners.

Does your dog have you jumping through hoops? Don't snicker — it happens, says a veterinarian who is also a psychologist.

By BRITTANY CHAPMAN
Weekly World News

"Dogs have learned to train their owners," declared Dr. Ian Dunbar. "Don't be fooled by your dog," Dr. Dunbar advised. "That cunning canine is a crafty animal who resorts to blackmail to get affection. And owners are sadly unaware that they are being blackmailed. They often end up becoming slaves to their four-footed masters."

Dr. Dunbar gave examples of how a dog sources its master.

"The dog barks and the owner lets it out," he said. "The next time the dog barks, the owner ignores it but later gives its Mom's best friend has just learned an important lesson. The dog knows if it barks, the master will open the door. Now the dog is training its master."

Similarly, Dr. Dunbar said, "Dogs will blackmail their owner to get better food. Say a dog is feeling slightly out of sorts one day. It refuses to eat its food. The owner is upset and thinks the pet is sick. The owner then lavishes attention on the dog. He then put broth in the food or gives better food in the dish. The dog again has learned an important lesson. If it refuses a item, the owner will respond with good food and more attention, both of which the dog likes."

To keep from being victimized by their pets, owners must determine which behavior is normal and which has been learned "through blackmailing," Dr. Dunbar said. Then work to prevent the undesirable behavior, he advised.

"Dogs may refuse their food because they are blackmailing the owner," he said. "But they may also be sick. If a dog doesn't eat its food in half an hour pick up the bowl and put it on the counter. Make no more fuss. Reoffer the food in an hour. If the dog still doesn't eat, then give it to him the next day. If he still doesn't eat the second day the dog might well be ill and you should take it to the veterinarian."

Summing up, Dr. Dunbar said "You can teach an old dog new tricks. It is difficult, but not impossible. An old dog must first unlearn bad behavior."

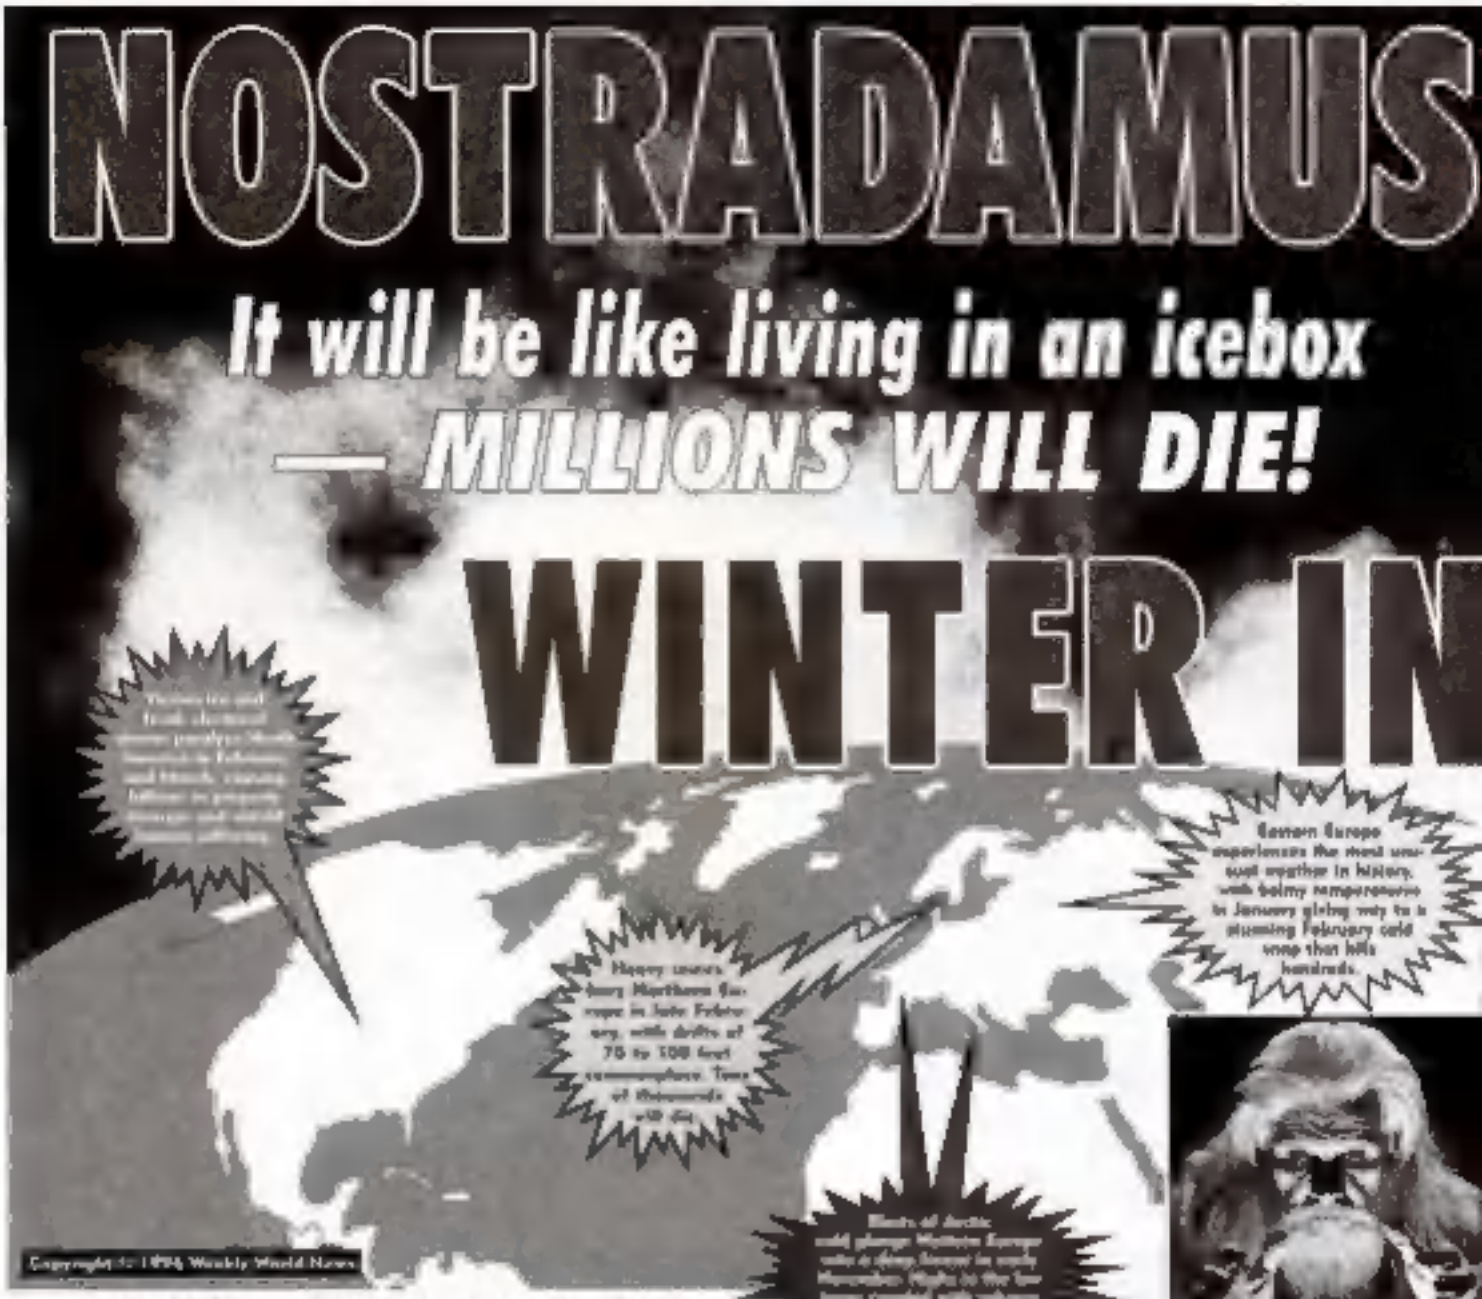
NOSTRADAMUS

It will be like living in an icebox — MILLIONS WILL DIE!

WINTER IN



WASHINGTON — Sixteenth-century prophet Nostradamus predicted the worst weather ever for the Northern Hemisphere this winter — weather that will kill millions of innocent men, women and children before the Arctic cold finally breaks in May!

The prediction is included in one of the famed French seer's poetic quatrains and, unlike so is-based historian Dr. Bernard Heuber the quatrain says:

In 96 and 97 the North Land suffers.
The people beg for mercy, but torment prevails.
Winter's cold is deep and long.
Death is freezing and sends millions home.

"Nostradamus was unusually concerned with the weather mankind would experience as we approach the latter of a quatrain that predicted record heat for America this past summer was right on the money.

"Because the weather-related quatrain specifically mentions the 'North Land,' we can only assume that the Northern Hemisphere is some sort of focal point for world events as we approach the year 2000."

The quatrain was included in Nostradamus's landmark 16th-century book, The Centuries, and is followed by unprecedented deep freeze in early November. Daytime highs in the low teens coupled with subzero lows as far south as Naples, Italy, place enormous demands on utilities, resulting in crippling power blackouts.

Deadly snow and ice storms cripple transportation and commerce, forcing schools and many businesses to close for weeks.

Because residents are unaccustomed to — and in many cases totally unprepared for — severe winter weather, the death toll quickly climbs into the hundreds, with children and senior citizens the hardest hit.

Record snowfall in early December and will remain in a deadly deep freeze until May.

Daytime highs of -5 to 18 degrees Fahrenheit prevail in January, with nighttime lows dipping to 20 to 130 below.

Various ice storms and freak electrical storms paralyze the continent in February and March, causing billions in property damage and untold human suffering — including deaths that number in the millions.

Frequent power blackouts will leave entire regions without heat, contributing rage in late February, with drifts of 70 to 100 feet commonplace.

Tens of thousands die in the blizzards, including motorists stranded on impassable highways and families trapped in their homes.

Shortages of fuel oil and coal compound the problems, leaving millions of people without the means to keep themselves and their families warm.

The death toll climbs steadily through April as record cold and continuing ice and snow storms pound the region, leaving millions with neither the strength — nor the supplies — to pounding away at the unprepared continent until May. Snowfall in mountainous areas breaks all previous records, contributing to more flooding during the spring melt.

A Bible-like flood kills millions and causes billions in property damage.

● Eastern Europe experiences the most unusual weather in history, with balmy temperatures in January giving way to a stunning February cold snap that kills hundreds who are unprepared for sustained subzero temperatures.
